“ She was so patient as she taught this city girl how to be a farm wife. I remember us canning and making jelly together, definitely doable for me. Branding cattle or catching and killing chickens not easy to do, and after one time she realized I was more trouble than help. We did have some good laughs and I cherish the memories with her. I love how she loved our children. They have fond memories of tea parties and playing dominoes and card games with her. Praise God we will join her someday for a heavenly tea party!
